Assessment Criteria with Marking Rubric (FXR - 2026/2027)
Criteria	Fail	Pass	Credit	Distinction	High Distinction
Development & Realisation	Techniques, materials, and technical skills are absent. No software or program presented.	Evidence that a minimal range/level of techniques and skills were explored to contribute to execution of the project. Initial ideas were not developed as much as they could have been.	A range of techniques and skills were used during development, but their application could be improved. Ideas were explored but not fully developed/implemented.	A well considered range of appropriate techniques and skills were applied to create several iterative prototypes. Ideas were clearly developed, executed and appropriate for the task of answering the question for the project, some adjustments may be beneficial.	A sophisticated range of appropriate techniques and skills were applied to create innovative, iterative programs. Ideas were developed robustly, and successfully executed.
Style and Structure of the Report	The writing lacks control of sentence mechanics and/or the conventions of written English. Style is inconsistent and/or inappropriate and/or the document contains many errors and omissions.	Writing demonstrates basic convensions of written English and is written in an appropriate style for the task. Document is generally well presented but contains some errors or omissions.	The writing flows logically. The overall grammar is clear with few spelling/grammar errors. The language structure ig generally good and appropriate words are chosen to convey meaning.	The writing is well structured and clearly communicates key information. The overall grammar is correct with only minor syntactical errors present. The authorial voice is present throughout.	The writing is well structured, concise and effectively communicates all key information. The overall grammar is clear with no syntactical errors present. The authorial voice enhances the overall discussion.